

Let there be light (and space)

ATTIC
GROUP

Kerin and Tom wanted more space for their growing children, as well as a dedicated work room for Kerin and a music room and office for Tom. The common living space was getting a little cramped, too.

Clever reconfiguration of the downstairs space along with a new upstairs extension affords the family with a spacious lounge and dining area along with a modern bathroom and laundry downstairs, and two new bedrooms and bathroom upstairs, all generously bathed in natural light.

The new spaces were built under the watchful eye of the Attic Group's professional project management team.

Left: A solar panel powered “skylight” creates the impression of natural daylight, matching outdoor brightness.

Right: Flush door panels hide extra storage space under the stairs.

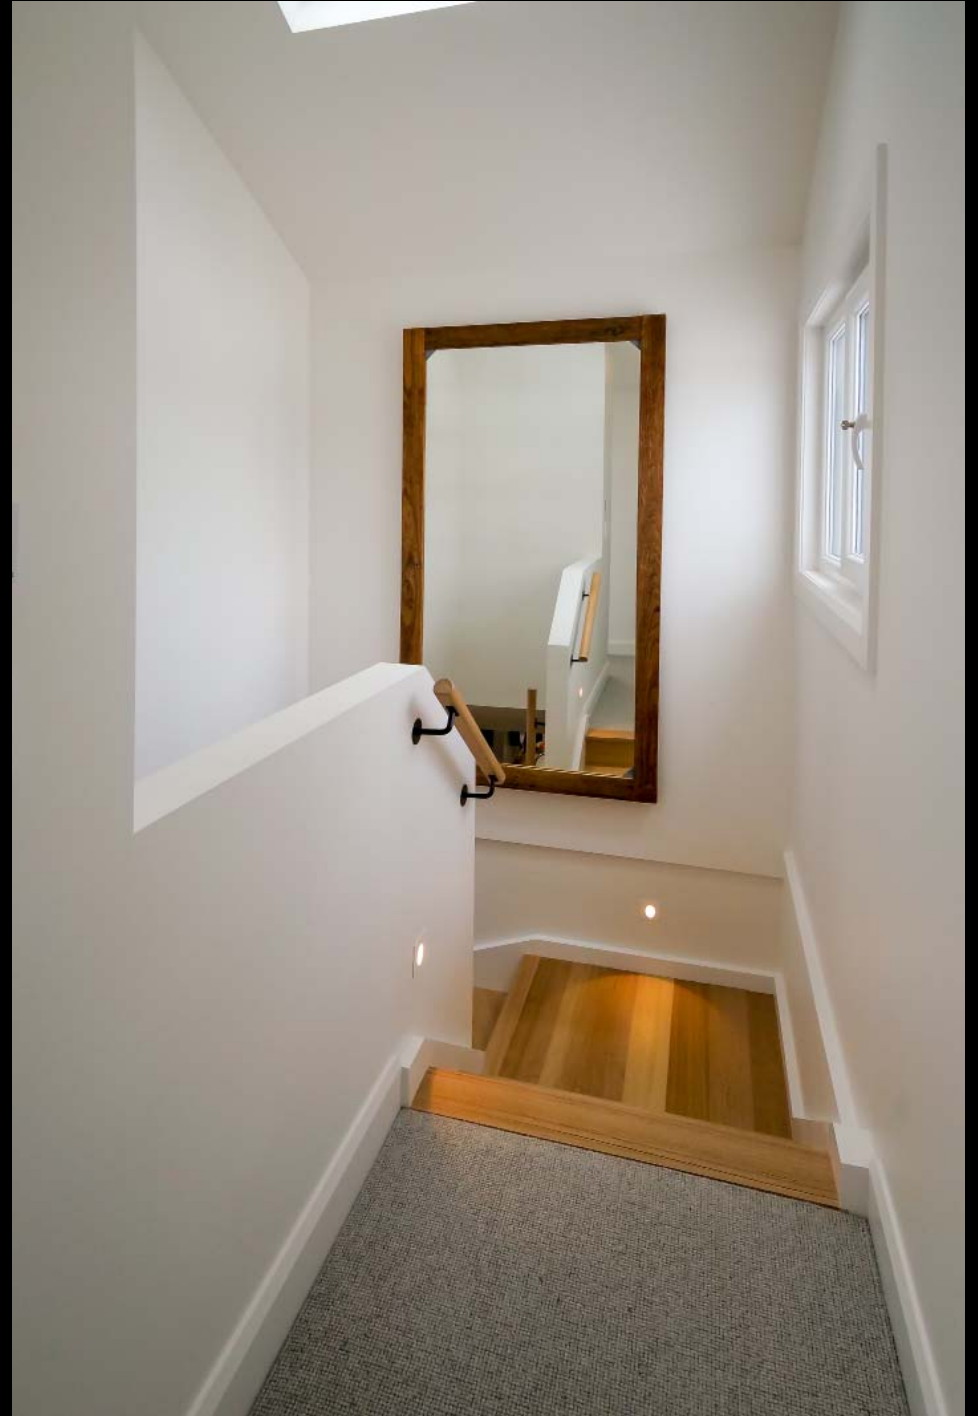

A slatted timber screen
along the stairs provides
a visual feast:
it offers glimpses up and down the stairs, allows abundant natural light
from above to spill into the loungeroom, and
casts an intriguing
pattern onto its opposite wall.

"All of the tradies that Attic brought in were really good — really good communicators, really good at their jobs." — Tom

"Yeah, we kind of miss them." — Kerin

"It's just nice to feel like we got what we had always dreamed of, but we didn't have to move." — Kerin

"We often just have a moment of bathing in the luxury of it all, and appreciating how much extra space we have." — Tom

"I would really recommend Attic Group. We had such a good experience with them." — Kerin
